

ABSTRACT

Embodiments of the present invention are directed to porous materials for use in solid phase extractions and chromatography. The materials feature at least one 5 hydrophobic component, at least one hydrophilic component and at least one ion-exchange functional group. The materials exhibit superior wetting and ion-exchange performance.